

Dear Judge,

I apologize for the shortness of this letter. What this man has done is extremely wrong yet he will still get away with it. In some ways I think its as bad as murder. His actions resulted in someones death, and all blame is on him. I watched with my own eyes, other people get higher sentencing than what this guy got and their crimes were insignificant next to his.

The toll this has taken on me is more than even I can tell. Probably more than most because I saw everything that happened. All of my family seemed to be able to confront all their problems with it and take steps toward acceptance. Yet I have recently realized that the wreck has caused me to totally cut my memory off from most of the time before it. I am rendered speechless whenever anyone starts talking about it. It is as if I still can't comprehend it even happened. But I know I will miss out on having a little sister to care for now. And she will completely miss out on all of life's rewards. I now know what it means to feel like you have a ~~was~~ hole in yourself, like something important is missing. And I know that it will never ever be filled in again.

Sincerely,

David Raymond
